

Soulcial Trust began the first of our basketball trainings on 7 September 2017. For most of the players—all living with disabilities incurred at birth, from landmines hidden after years of war, or by devastating accidents or illnesses—that session was the first time they had played wheelchair sports.

This is how the sport changed their lives.

PHOTOGRAPHS BY ROUN RY

“
Coming to the sports centre is a big part of my social life, to get to know other people. It is very encouraging for me.”

– NOUNAN

“

I want to show my disability to society, that I'm NOT the disability. I want to fight against discrimination and show my strength.”

– MONI SI LONG

“

I really want to learn wheelchair sports. It is my desire and my motivation to learn more and more.”

– SOUN SATH

“

The reason why I come is because I can be with other people who are disabled. It is very healthy—and fun!”

– SOUN

“

I am 65 years old and this is my first time playing wheelchair sports. I'm excited to join the trainings every week because of the team spirit on the court.”

– HA NEAT

“

My hand before cannot feel very well. After I join this sport my hand can touch and feel much better. It is very good for me.”

– BEL

motivation

OUR MISSION

Soulcial Trust harnesses the collaborative spirit of community to transform. We believe that every actor—whether an individual or organization—that participates in an initiative adds value towards achieving our common goal of a social, soulful society.

Our vision is a world where communities join forces to solve social injustice.

www.soulcialtrust.org