

Cheang Gee is one of the players on Siem Reap's wheelchair sports team. He has been with the team since the first day of training on 7 September 2017.

He shares his story about his disability, his family, and wheelchair sports.

PHOTOGRAPHS BY ROUN RY

I lost my right leg from an exploding landmine when I was a soldier. That was 21 years ago.

After I was discharged from the army, life as an amputee was hard. I found work as a construction worker, but I no longer have that job.

We live in the woods in Siem Reap where there are many homes. Our home is two walls and a covering for a roof.

We are a happy family,
but we struggle to live
with very little to support our children.

Inside my home, I make jewelry out of coconut shells to try to sell to tourists.

Playing wheelchair basketball,
I like learning new skills and
being with the other players.

I meet people from all over Cambodia and players from other parts of the world too.

I knew nothing about wheelchair sports before. I like it that my disability does not hinder me. I am very good at scoring!

I hope that by continuing to learn this sport, the future for my family will be brighter.

OUR MISSION

Soulcial Trust harnesses the collaborative spirit of community to transform. We believe that every actor—whether an individual or organization—that participates in an initiative adds value towards achieving our common goal of a social, soulful society.

Our vision is a world where communities join forces to solve social injustice.

www.soulcialtrust.org